The compiler of this little volume has been much interested in tracing the family history of the company who emigrated from England, and began the settlement of Guilford, Connecticut, in 1639. To one member of this company, the family of William Chittenden, he claims relationship by right of intermarriage. The statistics of the individual members of this family are collected and arranged in regular order, commencing at the settlement of the town and extending down to the present time. The materials have been obtained by deciphering ancient records, public and private, and by investigations and enquiries continued through a series of years. The records of the earlier families are more liable to be lost, and it is very important to place them in a permanent form. Of these families the record here given is nearly complete, and will be reliable for future reference. In the more recent families any mistakes or omissions can easily be rectified.

One generation only of the Chittenden daughters is here given. To carry down these lines to the present time would impair the apparent unity of the book, and would nearly double its size.

The compiler would express his great obligations to all those who have kindly assisted him in the prosecution of the work. Much trouble and expense have been incurred by E. S. Chittenden, Esq., of St. Paul, Minn., in instituting enquiries as to the antecedents of the Chittenden family in England, and in looking up and collecting the scattered families in this country. Valuable contributions for the work have been furnished by Mrs. Martha Chittenden Bogert, of Hudson, N. Y., Dr. Curtis S. Chittenden, of Hamilton, Ontario, Miss Jane L. Nash, of Shelburn, Vt., and others.

Errors and omissions in a work of this kind are unavoidable, and the compiler proposes to supply in a Supplement any corrections or additions that may be brought to his notice.

CHITTENDEN GENEALOGY.

Origin of the Name.—Arthur, in his “Derivation of Family Names,” considers the name as derived from corrupt British and Welsh—from the words chy “house,” tane “lower,” and din or dun “hill,” the lower house on the hill.

The orthography of the name has been subject to great variations, as is the case with most names in the earlier periods. At present, almost uniform usage has settled upon the form CHITTENDEN. The name is quite common at the present day in London and other parts of England.

We have a record of only two families of Chittendens as coming to this country in its early history. One of these was Thomas Chittenden, linen weaver, who came with his son Isaac in 1635 from Wapping in Kent, and settled in Scituate, Plymouth Co., Mass. His descendants are still found in that vicinity. The relationship of this Family to the Connecticut Chittendens, though probable, has not been ascertained.

The ancestor of this latter Family which it is the object of this work to sketch, was WILLIAM CHITTENDEN. He was one of the company of twenty-five, gathered chiefly from the counties of Kent, Surrey, and Sussex, in the south of England, who determined to leave their native land and seek a new home in the wilderness, in order to enjoy the free exercise of their religious principles. Their first recorded act as a separate community was the Covenant, which they signed on ship-board, while on the passage, and which is here transcribed.

COVENANT.

We, whose names are hereunder written, intending by God's gracious permission to plant ourselves in New England, and if it may be, in the southerly part, about Quinnipiack: We do faithfully promise each to each, for ourselves and families, and those that belong to us; that we will, the Lord assisting us, sit down and join ourselves together in one entire plantation; and to be helpful each to the other in every common work, according to every man's ability and as need shall require; and we promise not to desert or leave each other or the plantation, but with the consent of the rest, or the greater part of the company who have entered into this engagement.

As for our gathering together in a church way, and the choice of officers and members to be joined together in that way, we do refer ourselves until such time as it shall please God to settle us in our plantation.

In witness whereof we subscribe our hands, the first day of June, 1639.

This company sailed from England for America about the 20th of May, 1639, in a ship of 350 tons, and after a passage of about seven weeks arrived in New Haven about the 10th of July. (See Appendix A.) They made arrangements for settling in Guilford in the autumn of the same year, adding to their company some few whom they found in New Haven. The deed of purchase of the lands for the colony from SHAUMPISHUH, the sachem squaw of Menunkatuck is dated Sept. 29 (Oct. 9 N. S.), 1639.

Prominent among the original settlers of Guilford was William Chittenden. He came from the parish of Cranbrook, in Kent, some 35 miles S. E. of London. Little is known of his antecedents. In the record of baptisms in the parish of Marden, near Cranbrook, occurs this entry :

"March, 1594. William, son of Robert Chittenden, [Signed] Salmon Boxer, Vicar of Marden."

There is no reason to doubt that this William is identical with William the emigrant. No other records of the Chittenden family can be found in the adjacent parishes, Cranbrook, Marden, Welford and Goudhurst, for the last half of the sixteenth century.

Mr. Chittenden was a man of ability and influence, and during his whole life filled many important offices in the plantation. He was one of the six persons selected to purchase the lands in Guilford from the native owners, and was also one of four (Robert Kitchell, William Chittenden, John Bishop, and William Leete) who received, according to the record, "full power and authority to act, order and dispatch all matters respecting the publick weale and civile government of the plantation, until a church is gathered amonge us." On the gathering of the church, June 19 (June 29 N. S.), 1643, these four magistrates resigned their trust to the church, which, as in New Haven, exercised control in secular and civil matters, as well as in those relating to religion.

Mr. Chittenden was the principal military man of the plantation, bearing the title of Lieutenant. Savage states, I. 381, that "he had been a soldier in the English Army in the Netherlands in the Thirty Years War, and that he reached the rank of Major." He was a magistrate of the plantation and deputy to the General Court until his death.

His lands are thus described in Guilford Proprietors' Records, I. 2 :

Imprimis, One home lot, containing and allowed for three acres and a quarter, fronting to the street on the North, rearing back to the land of Thomas French on the South, bounded with the home lot of Mr. Jacob Sheaffe on the East. Adjoining to which said home lot the said William Chittenden hath sixteen acres of upland, and seven acres and one-half of meadow land, more or less, abutting against the land of Richard Hues on the South, and encompassed with the West River on the West and North. (See sketch.)

Item.—One piece of upland in the plain, containing and allowed for six acres and three-quarters, more or less, butting up to the lane by the mill lot, rearing back to the marsh land of John Bishop on the West, bounded with the land of Henry Goldam on the South, and the land of George Chatfield on the North.

Other lots are described in a similar manner, and the amount of the whole is about 100 acres.

The home lot and land adjoining first described above, passed upon his death into the possession of his oldest son, Thomas. Thomas divided it equally between his two married sons, William and Josiah, each son having $1\frac{3}{4}$ acres fronting on the street (now named Broad street) and eight acres of upland adjoining, with a portion of the marsh land. Josiah's portion was east of William's, and extended around William's in the form of an L, both portions being bounded on the West by the river.

These portions have since been united, and the old ancestral property has been in the possession of some one of the descendants of the first William in every generation down to the present time. The present owner is Hon. Simeon B. Chittenden, 419, of Brooklyn, N. Y., of the seventh generation, who has done much to improve and beautify the place of his birth, making it his summer residence.

The spot selected by William Chittenden 240 years ago for his new home is a remarkably fine location. It overlooks the Menunkatuck river, which winds its way like a ribbon of silver, through a wide expanse of meadow gained from the sea, and level as a floor, clothed in summer with herb-age of the richest green, but converted, when the tide is quite high, into a smooth lake, half a mile in width, which, as if by magic, in six hours vanishes away with the receding tide, leaving only a gently flowing stream.

William Chittenden was married while in England to Joanna Sheaffe, daughter of Dr. Edmund and Joanna Sheaffe, of Cranbrook, Kent. [Dorothy Sheaffe, sister of Joanna, was the wife of Rev. Henry Whitfield, first minister and leading member of the Guilford colony.] It is probable that two or more of Mr. Chittenden's ten children were born in England. The birth of his sixth child, Hannah, is on the Guilford Records at the date of Nov. 15, 1649, previous to which time no provision seems to have been made in the plantation for the public record of births.

Mr. Chittenden died at the age of about 67 years in Feb. 1660-1.

In the New Haven Colonial Records, p. 417, we find this entry :

"An Inventory of the estate of Will^m Chittenden of Guilford, deceased, was presented, amounting to £677 16 s. 7 d. as presented and proved in court at Guilford, the 21st of February, 1660-1, upon oath of Joane Chittenden, the widow and relict of the sayd Will^m Chittenden, deceased, for the quantity, and by the testimony of Abraham Cruttenden, sen^r, John Fowler, and Will^m Stone, appraisers, for the valuation to be just.

WILL^M. LEETE, Governor."

Joanna Chittenden, widow of William, married 2d in 1665, Abraham Cruttenden of Guilford as his second wife.

She died in Guilford, Aug. 16, 1668. Her mother, Joanna Sheaffe, widow of Dr. Edmund Sheaffe, emigrated with the family from England and died in Guilford, August 1, 1659.

Evarts, of Guilford, and Margaret Hastings, of Hatfield, born Mar. 31, 1721. He removed to Salisbury, and in 1770 to Vermont. Family not found.

Gov. Thomas Chittenden, son of Ebenezer, 32, removed from Guilford at the age of 21 to Salisbury, in Litchfield County, then in its first settlement, where he was prosperous in business, and a prominent man in the community, sustaining important civil and military offices. In 1773, he removed again to what was then called the New Hampshire Grants, now the State of Vermont. He purchased a large tract of land on Onion River, then a wilderness, which took the name of Williston. Here he began a settlement with brilliant prospects, till the war of the Revolution commenced, when he was driven from his home to a place less exposed to the enemy. He was a leading man in the measures taken to form a separate government for the State of Vermont, and in 1778 was chosen its first Governor, which office he held with the exception of one year until his death.

"Gov. Chittenden possessed in an eminent degree precisely those qualities that fitted him for the place in which he was called to act. He had not, indeed, enjoyed many of the advantages of education, but his want of education was amply supplied by the possession of a strong and active mind, which, at the time when he emigrated to Vermont, was matured by age, practiced in business, and enriched by a careful observation of men and things. His knowledge was practical, rather than theoretical. He was regular in his habits, plain and simple in his manners, averse to ostentation in equipage or dress, and he cared little for the luxuries, blandishments and etiquette of refined society.

"Though he was deficient in many of the qualities now deemed essential in a statesman, he possessed all that was necessary in the times in which he lived, and was probably far better fitted to be the leader and governor of the independent, dauntless and hardy, but uneducated, settlers of Vermont, than would have been a man of greater theoretic knowledge and more political accomplishments."

He married in 1750, Elizabeth Meigs, dau. of Janna Meigs and Elizabeth Dudley, of East Guilford, sister of his brother Ebenezer's wife, born Oct. 17, 1731. Gov. Chittenden died, aged 67, Aug. 25, 1797.

Cornelius Chittenden enlisted in the Revolutionary Army at the age of 15, served three years under Baron Steuben, was acquainted with Washington, and claimed the honor of having made Washington laugh on review day, in a conversation about his cousin.

He commenced life without means, and gained a good farm property. He and his wife held connection with the Congregational Church till they preached too strong upon future punishment, when he left them and joined the Methodist Church. He left them when they held slavery as too light an evil, and helped to organize the First Wesleyan Methodist Church in Westbrook, which was sustained strongly by him through severe struggles in the Anti-slavery contest. He often said the nation must suffer for the crime of slavery.

He had 10 sons and 7 daughters. Three daughters, named Polly, Mehitabel, and Susan, died in childhood at nearly the same time, and were buried in the same grave.

APPENDIX A.

Some erroneous opinions have existed respecting the original settlers of Guilford, as that they were a part of the New Haven company, and that they came from Boston to New Haven.

The following interesting letter from the late Hon. Ralph D. Smith, of Guilford, to Edwin S. Chittenden, Esq., of St. Paul, Minnesota, will throw light on some doubtful points.

Guilford, Sept. 12, 1868.

E. S. CHITTENDEN, ESQ.

Dear Sir :—Yours of Sept. 9th, inst., is at hand. I do not think the statement contained in the Ruggles account of the settlement of Guilford entitled to much credit; still less those of Dr. Sprague, to which you refer. They are too loose and traditional. The only evidence of much value in arriving at the history of these early periods is the documentary.

Rev. Henry Whitfield conducted the emigration of the little colony that settled Guilford; and, although the company of young men who came with him for that purpose were not rich, still they were not poor, in the sense which Cotton Mather indicates [Vol. I, p. 393, ed. 1853], but were persons of property and good education and culture. They were mostly from the counties of Surrey, Kent, and Sussex, with a few from Huntingdon and Cambridgeshire [North of London].

The great Bishop Hoadley, the leading ecclesiastic of England in the early part of the last century, was a grandson of Rev. John Hoadley, one of the first settlers of Guilford; and in the autobiography contained in the first part of the large folio, 3 vol. edition of Bishop Hoadley's works, he says that his grandfather, John Hoadley, left Rolverden, in Kent, his native place, on the 26th day of April, 1639, to join Mr. Whitfield's company about to embark from London for New England.

He says Mr. Hoadley became acquainted on the passage with a young lady, Miss Sarah Bushnell, daughter of Francis Bushnell, of Horsted, in Sussex, whom he subsequently married at Guilford, July 14, 1642. And that after remaining in Guilford fifteen years he sold his property there [Sept. 1654] and left Oct. 20, 1654, for England and Scotland, where he was chaplain to Mr. Samuel Desborough, who had been the first magistrate of Guilford from 1639 to 1651, and had returned to England at the request of Oliver Cromwell, his relative, and had become Lord Chancellor of Scotland.

Mr. Noble, in his "History of the Cromwell Family" (Vol. II, p. 295), gives some account of him and says "he went to New England to enjoy his religious opinions," says he was appointed "keeper of the great seal of Scotland for life, Sept. 16, 1657. After the restoration of Charles II. he obtained a pardon, Dec. 12, 1660, and retired to his manor of Ellsworth in Cambridgeshire, where he lived the rest of his days." He died Dec. 10, 1690.

Mr. William Leete, afterwards Governor of Connecticut, the first secretary of the colony of Guilford, had been previously a lawyer of Keystone in Huntingdonshire, and was a neighbor of Cromwell who lived nine miles off at Hichingbrooke, and also a neighbor of Mr. Samuel Desborough, who was born at Ettisley in Cambridgeshire. He came over in Mr. Whitfield's company. I found, not long since, among the papers of the Mass. Hist. Soc. at Boston, a contract drawn by Mr. Leete, dated April 13, 1639, in which he contracts with one Edward Jones, a carpenter of Wellingboro in Northamptonshire, to serve him as a builder, &c. [gives details of contract, &c.], and also recites delivery of a box of tools, &c., at London Bridge, on or about May 1, 1639, to be transported to New England.

I have copied this ancient writing to prove what time the first families of Guilford left England. From some other proofs I make it certain that they left England from the 20th to the 25th of May, 1639, in a ship of 350 tons from London to Quillipiack, afterwards called New Haven. When they had been about a week on their way across the Atlantic they signed a plantation covenant bearing date June 1, 1631 (see page 6).

The arrival of the ship was expected at New Haven, for we find a letter copied by Rev. M. Waddington, of London, from the British Museum from Rev. Mr. Davenport, first minister of New Haven, to Lady Mary Vere, Baroness of Tilbury, and daughter-in-law of the 15th Earl of Oxford, dated Quinnipiack, 28, 7th mo. [Sept.] 1639. He says, "By the good hand of God upon us my dear child [Mr. Davenport had a son on board who had been living with Lady Vere] is safely arrived, with sundry desirable friends, as Mr. Fenwick and his lady, Mr. Whitfield, &c., to our great comfort. Their passage was so ordered, as it appeared, that prayers were accepted; for they had no sickness in the ship except a little sea-sickness. They attained to New Haven, where they wanted, in seven weeks. About the time we guessed they might approach near us, we set a day apart for public extraordinary humiliation by fasting and prayer; and shortly after we sent out a pinnace to pilot them into our harbour. For it was the first ship that ever cast anchor in this place. But our pilots, having watched for them a fortnight, grew weary and returned home; and the very next night after, the ship came in guided by God's own hand to our town. The sight of y^e harbour did so please y^e capitaine of the ship and all the passengers that he called it Fayre Haven." Fair Haven is its name now, and New Haven the name of the city.

In Savage's "Winthrop's New England," Vol. I., p. 306, he says, under date of 5th month, or July, "In this month there arrived two ships at Quillipiack. One was of 350 tons, wherein came Mr. Fenwick and lady and family to make a plantation at Saybrook upon the mouth of Connecticut River. Two other plantations were begun beyond Quillipiack, and every plantation intended a peculiar government." These two plantations were evidently Milford and Guilford. Hubbard, the historian of New England, writing in 1678 or 9, copies Winthrop, and identifies the time and places fully. Hubbard says the vessel of 350 tons which bore Mr. Fenwick and Mr. Whitfield and their several companies, arrived about the 15th of July. I think a careful examination of the whole record would indicate a few days earlier, about the 10th or 12th as the day of the arrival of the vessel. Early in August the colony on the river were treating with Mr. Fenwick who had got established at Saybrook.

A very friendly relation existed between Mr. Whitfield and Mr. Fenwick. They were of about the same age, both graduates of Oxford, and both had been educated at Gray's Inn of Court. They came over in the same vessel, and the new wife of Mr. Fenwick, who was a widow of Lord Boller, and a daughter of Sir Edward Apsley, assisted Mr.

Whitfield by her own personal means, in arranging the affairs of his plantation. [Vol. VI, 4th series, Mass. Hist. Rep., p. 365.]

Yours truly, in haste,

R. D. SMITH.

APPENDIX B.

Letter of Dr. C. S. Chittenden, of Hamilton, Ont.

Rev. Bethuel Chittenden, 73, removed to Vermont about the same time with his brother, Gov. Thomas. He settled first in Tinmouth, Vt., and built mills there. He was living in that town at the time of the battle of Bennington, and was on the battlefield with my father, Bela Chittenden, then a boy of nine years, on the next day after the fight. At the time of Burgoyne's campaign, in 1777, he was sent as one of a committee of six, from the town of Tinmouth, to confer with the aforesaid General, and try to prevent his sending the Indians to ravage the townships, which he had threatened to do. Burgoyne compelled each of the committeemen to swear not to take up arms against the Crown, and to supply his forces with provisions and forage if his army should come near them. The other five members of the committee paid no attention to their oaths but took up arms at once in defence of the State. My grandfather refused to break his oath, although it had been obtained by Burgoyne under the menace that he would hold them all prisoners, and send the Indians to destroy their homes and carry off their families. He would not forswear himself, but in order to render the oath ineffectual, he left all and retired within the American lines, so that Burgoyne's army could not come near him. I remember distinctly the above, as one of the tales of his boyhood, related to me by my father when I was a boy.

He removed from Tinmouth to Shelburne, Vt., and subsequently prepared himself for the ministry and was ordained Deacon, June 1, 1787, being then 46 years of age, and ordained Priest, June 29, 1794.

On the morning of his death, while riding to the place of worship where he was to officiate, he remarked to his son Bela, "your mother is very feeble, while I seem to be hale and hearty, but I have often lately felt as if I should be taken away before her." On arriving at the house, he sat down to warm himself for a few minutes before commencing the service, when his head fell forward, and without a moment's warning he ceased to breathe. The following is the epitaph on his tombstone:

A watchman long on Zion's wall,
His life reproved the sins of all ;
And while he met his flock to pray,
God took his useful life away.
